

Summer Reading
HONORS/AP

The goal of Portsmouth Christian School's summer reading program is to encourage students to read by having them choose from well-written and 'readable' books. Honors' English students must read three books: two required books (located above the asterisks) and one other from their grade-level list. Summer reading evaluation will begin when students return to school. The honors' students will take a multiple choice test over the two required novels, and an essay on the their novel to be assigned after classes start.
